Faculty Council ok's Convo without credit

By Richard Lorenz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A legislative proposal recommending that Convocation be continued without credit was approved Tuesday by the Faculty Council.

The council also approved its nominees to the teaching-learning task force that President David R. Derge recently announced would be appointed to study student-faculty relationships and quality of education at SIU.

In other action, the council accepted a report which found no grounds in statutes and bylaws of the Board of Trustees for denying tenure to a faculty member for "divisive behavior" and "criticism of the University."

The tenure report also said the committee's opinion is that the bylaws and statutes do not contain adequate guarantees against tenure decisions "based on rumor, 'common knowledge' and possibly only one side of a case."

The Convocation proposal was made by the undergraduate education policy joint standing committee, and will be sent to Derge.

JoAnne Thorpe, committee chairman, said the committee felt Convocation was not fulfilling its original intent. Paul Hibbs, coordinator of special programs, told the council the committee had never consulted him about Convocation.

The council approved another legislative proposal calling for a reevaluation of Convocation program offerings. The council did not say who will conduct the reevaluation.

Nominated for the teaching-learning task force, whose members President Derge will select, were Harry Ammon, professor of history; Robert Griffin, assistant professor of English; Chester Johnston, assistant professor at VTI; Keith Sanders, assistant professor of speech; Joanne Thorpe, assistant professor of women's physical education; Eleanor Bushee, assistant professor at VTI; and Gene Dybvig, assistant professor of radio and television.

The tenure study report dealt with a list of questions presented to the council in April by James Diefenbeck, assistant professor of philosophy. Neither the questions nor the report mentions the tenure denial case of Douglas Allen, assistant professor of philosophy.

The report, which will be sent to the board, states that according to the bylaws and statutes of the Board of Trustees, the University should not deny tenure to a faculty member before tenure has been requested and without consultation with at least the person's department chairman.

Most favor low-income housing

By Barry Cleveland
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Most Carbondale residents believe that construction of low-income housing should be the top priority in the city. But most would not vote for a property tax increase to help finance the project.

About 89 per cent of the citizens know that Neal Eckert is Carbondale's mayor. But only 36 per cent can identify Bill Schwegman as public works director and only 31 per cent know that Archie Jones is a city councilman.

About 53 per cent have displayed a bumper sticker or worn a button in support of a political candidate, but only 16 per cent have contributed money towards a campaign.

These and scores of other conclusions were presented to the Goals for Carbondale steering committee Monday night after a nine-month campaign to gather citizen opinion about life in Carbondale.

Slightly over 200 people randomly selected from all areas of Carbondale were interviewed by students in the SIU Department of Government, using surveys constructed by the Public Affairs Research Bureau, according to Don Monty, goals program coordinator.

In addition, the five subcommittees of the program held public hearings throughout the winter in another effort to find out what citizens believe is wrong with the city and what should be done.

The goals steering committee will compile a final document of goals, which will be circulated throughout the community in July and presented to the city council in August with whatever revisions the public feels should be included, Monty said.

The program was funded through the Illinois Department of Local Government Affairs, the Model Cities program and a 701 planning grant from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Total budget for the program was $20,500, with about $8,500 going to Monty as salary and about $5,000 for salary for a secretary, he said.

Among the other results of the survey, conducted among a random sampling of residents throughout the city, are these:

About 79 per cent favor the expansion of adult educational and job retraining programs, with six per cent opposing it. (Continued on Page 3)

Polls stay open three extra hours

By The Associated Press

The counting of votes in California's crucial presidential primary election was delayed for at least three hours Tuesday as a federal judge ordered San Francisco polls to stay open until 11 p.m. Pacific time (1 a.m. Central time) to give voters time to cast the city's unusually long ballot in the California primary.

With long lines of voters reported at polling places all day, U.S. District Court Judge George Harris issued his order shortly after 5 p.m., directing the registrar of voters to keep the polls open three hours after the scheduled 8 p.m. closing time.

In Mississippi, Sen. James O. Eastland easily won renomination in the Democratic primary to a sixth term, and civil rights figure James Meredith was defeated in a bid for the Republican nomination.

Eastland, who had waged his most spirited campaign since 1954, jumped into the lead with the first returns and quickly outdistanced both attorney Taylor Webb of Leland and state Rep. Louis Fondren of Moss Point.

In Arkansas, Sen. John L. McClellan apparently failed to win a first-ballot nomination for a sixth term in the Democratic primary. He faced the prospect of a politically hazardous runoff with youthful Congressman David Pryor.

Vote totals for the powerful, 30-year Senate veteran hovered near 45 per cent in unofficial returns, below the majority necessary to escape a runoff, which would be held June 15.

Incumbents traditionally fare poorly in Arkansas runoffs.

In the New Mexico Democratic primary, with 35 per cent of the votes counted, Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., and Alabama Gov. George Wallace were tied with 31 per cent each.

Minnesota Sen. Hubert Humphrey had about 26 per cent of the vote.

In the Republican primary, President Nixon had 90 per cent of the votes.

11 faculty to receive awards for long service

By Jan Tranchita
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Eleven SIU faculty members will receive service awards from the University at Friday's graduation ceremonies for more than 25 years of service to the school, according to Andy Marce, coordinator of the graduation program and conference coordinator of the Division of Continuing Education.

"The awards are in recognition of long years of service to the University," Marce said. He said this is a monument to the person since Marce felt the role of occupations is changing and that most people did not stay at one place of employment for that long a period.

Those receiving awards are: Van A. Buboltz, assistant professor in secretarial and business education, 35 years; George Cherry, professor in history, 25 years; Troy W. Edward, assistant dean of executive services in the College of Education, 25 years; William Freeberg, professor in recreation, 30 years; Elbert H. Hadley, associate dean in Liberal Arts and Sciences, 25 years; Dorothy Heicke, assistant professor in Morris Library, 25 years; Donald Ingli, associate professor, instructional materials, 25 years; Margaret Kaeiser, associate professor, botany, 25 years; Archibald McLeod, chairman of the Department of Theater, 25 years; Vernon Morrison, professor in economics, 25 years; and Max W. Turner, professor in government, 25 years.

the University" are adequate grounds for refusal to grant tenure," and do not define the terms, the report says.

The report states that if the board considers a faculty member's dissent from the opinions of the board as the grounds for not granting tenure, the act would be inconsistent with the board's own statement on academic freedom.

The council discussed, but took no action on, a possible need to restrict attendance at general faculty meetings to faculty members only. The discussion arose as a result of disruptive behavior by students at President Derge's recent "State of the Campus" speech at a faculty meeting.

The council also submitted seven nominees for a tenure grievance panel: Miriam Dusenbery, secondary education; Vernold Feiste, assistant professor of electrical sciences and systems engineering; C. Addison Hickman, professor of economics; John Mercer, professor of cinema and photography; Steven McNeel, assistant professor of psychology; Edward McNichols, English instructor; and Russ Trimble, associate professor of chemistry.

A proposal to alter the policy concerning incomplete grades was referred to the undergraduate education committee.

Approval was given to a request that the date of implementation of mandatory course withdrawals in General Studies be postponed until the beginning of fall quarter, 1973. The motion follows a 37 per cent reduction in General Studies courses made by the general studies joint standing committee. The reductions were to become effective winter quarter, 1973. Some council members argued that there would not be enough time to accomplish the reduction.

Dogs attend class

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP)—Northwestern University has taken to the presence of dogs in classrooms.

"It's good to see the kids relaxed about something," said Bergen Evans, professor of English.

Professor Evans, who owned a black cocker spaniel for 18 years, said most of the dogs sit peacefully beside their masters and rarely cause more than a few moments' disturbance.

About 55 per cent favor the conversion of South Illinois Avenue into a shopping mall, while 22 per cent are opposed.

Nearly 74 per cent favor a city crackdown on the sale and use of hard drugs, including marijuana, while 35 per cent oppose that action.

The participants identify themselves as 30 per cent Democratic, 21 per cent Republican and 49 per cent independent.

About 43 per cent say they depend on newspapers for their

"most believable information" about politics and local affairs, while about 20 per cent chose both radio and television.

Monty said he may do a further breakdown on the survey results this summer, dividing the city into seven areas and determining how residents of each area feel about the particular issues involved. A breakdown by age group is also possible, he said.

The goals program will come to an end in August.

Bond return dates set for 60 students arrested in disturbances

Bond return dates were set Tuesday for nearly 60 SIU students arrested in connection with the May 10-12 disturbances in Carbondale.

At least 24 cases have been disposed of in either Jackson County Circuit Court in Murphysboro or Carbondale city court.

A return date of June 12 was set for John Weis, Kevin F. Weinrich, John William Murphy, Ronald Krick, Gary LaCorte, Rue McNay, James Destefano, Arthur Crannage, Louis Belfano, Garry Barker, Michael J. Klein, Barry Kodat, Marlene Dankworst, Kenneth Phelps, Randall B. Brown, Mark Burstein, Edward R. Dolan.

Thomas Cannella, Dan Starwalt, Michael Diederich, David Pasteris, Michael F. Altherr, Jerry Meeker, Michael Swanson, John Russell, Kathy Hall, Mary Heern, William Kraft, Joseph Clark and Mike Economopoulos.

A date of June 13 was set for Louis Diamond, Frederick Hazard, William Moffett, Christine Mallow, Larry Sapp, Gary Stanley, Robert Walsh, Kenneth Hadler, Mitchell Hadler, Stanley Carpenter, Lawrence Roth, Kevin Minogue, William J. Armstrong.

Linda M. Vocum, Douglas Smith, Thomas Krajenta, Earl Ripling, William Pederson, Craig Schofield, James Dollenmaier, John McKee, Martin Haake, Tom Kondo, Mark Krainock, Timothy Glavin, Randall Perdue and Rick Fritschle.

Return date of September 26 was set for Daniel McCarthy.

No dates have been set for Gary Passavanti, Joshua D. Bank, Perry Walker and Frederick Green.

Cases which have been disposed of include the following:

Mark Finn, fined $25 and costs May 22 on charge of underage acceptance of alcohol.

Dwayne Taylor, fined $5 and costs May 22 for curfew violation.

William S. Bills, fined $10 and costs May 15 for disorderly conduct.

David Cole, fined $10 and costs May 22 for disorderly conduct.

Jeffrey Dick, fined $10 and costs May 22 for disorderly conduct.

Kenneth Holmgren, forfeited $25 bond May 25 for curfew.

Robert Jessup, fined $10 and costs May 15 for curfew.

Teaching-learning: the reason we're here

The violent incidents of May 1970 and the closing of the University had since left the campus in relative peace and quiet—an environment conducive to teaching and learning in a high institute of education. Although violence seemed to be rekindled a few weeks ago, the impact of the demonstrations and rallies on day-to-day class attendance and on the freedom to teach and to learn has not been significant.

The teaching-learning environment of this University during the past and present year, rather than suffered limitations from the budget squeeze, the priority system for educational programs, the arbitrary denials of tenure and pay raises and the administrative superpowers vested in the Board of Trustees and the President of SIU. All these factors undermine academic freedom and integrity—the gist of the whole teaching-learning environment on campus.

With the austerity program haunting the University and a meager $54 million operating budget for the 1973 fiscal year, many existing educational programs have to be drastically reduced or completely phased out. The directive issued to SIU from the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE) last year instructed the University to draw up a priority list in order to facilitate the reducing or scrapping of existing programs.

This list stirred great controversy and a multitude of varying opinions within the University community. In the interest of education, the list certainly limits access to a variety of programs and hence, freedom of choice in teaching and in learning. For instance, people who are interested in vocational technical education, police training, business secretarial studies or teacher preparation programs may find that these programs will soon become history in the University's curriculum.

The concept of the campus as being a free forum for dissent no longer holds true for this campus. The Board of Trustees' denial of tenure to Douglas M. Allen and the alleged denial of a pay raise to C. Harvey Gardiner, both outspoken critics against the Vietnam war and the Vietnamese Studies Center at SIU, signal to the rest of the University community that the Board still cherishes a stone-age ideal that teaching and learning should be limited to classrooms, and that an expansion of the teaching-learning experience to world and local politics outside of class should be classified as a "diservice to the University."

Such stifling influence on the teaching-learning environment prevails under the veil that the University "welcomes responsible dissent and discourse on issues of our time," as promulgated by the Interim Policy on Demonstrations.

Casting a more positive light on the campus teaching-learning environment, was the formation of the University Senate on March 8, 1971.

This "integrated effort at governance," as former-president Robert G. Lyster had said, generated university-wide participation in policy formulation and in decision making.

The Senate, approved by a university-wide referendum in January 1971, includes representatives from all SIU constituencies and sectors, thus stimulating direct involvement in campus politics—an outgrowth of the regular teaching learning routine.

Under the principle of "shared governance," the U-Senate was designed to "remedy the narrowly conceived and often unresponsive existent system" by involving itself in general matters of educational and nonacademic policy.

The U-Senate, in its affirmative actions toward improving the teaching-learning environment at SIU, has approved the formation of the Illinois Public Interest Research Group (IPIRG), endorsed designs to refurbish McAndrew Stadium and to reorganize the Daily Egyptian, assigned a task force to establish the status of women in the University, formed a committee to study men's intercollegiate athletics and urged then-president Robert Lyster not to submit the afore-mentioned priority list to IBHE.

The Senate, to crown all, was vested with the power to override the President of the University's veto over any legislative proposal. This power, however, was left ill-defined by President David R. Derge when he said he welcomes advice from anyone, including the Senate, but that he can "reserve judgment as to whether he will take that advice." This implied that the Senate will henceforth be an advisory body for Derge, and the main decision-making power will rest with him and with the Board of Trustees.

This sharp undercutting of the Senate's power also undermines the teaching-learning environment in that faculty and students may be alienated from participation in campus governance, which is, in essence, practical learning.

That policies governing the teaching-learning practices on campus is to be determined solely by the President and the Board of Trustees is undemocratic and not in the interest of faculty and students who form the teaching-learning climate on campus.

The Senate's role as a contributor and coordinator of the University's teaching-learning environment, therefore, depends upon how Derge exercises his jurisdiction over it.

In a recent speech, Derge revealed his plan to find new paths and options in the areas of promotion, tenure and salary for faculty members. This plan, if implemented, will create a better teaching environment; but to ensure a better teaching-learning environment for the whole University, Derge would establish a dialogue with the University governance and not bypass its input. In all fairness, he should restore the veto power which was granted to the Senate at its inauguration.

Although the teaching-learning environment is not a creation of the Board of Trustees or the President, they alone, remain the chief influence governing the wholesomeness or the degeneration of it.

Cutting fat

To the Daily Egyptian:

It was reported last week that George Mace, Assistant to the President for Student Affairs does not think students and Student Government are serious about holding the line on total fees while adding the proposed $25.00 Health fee. Dr. Mace is sadly mistaken. The stance of Student Government states simply: We will "approve the DuBois Health Plan... (if) the present fee structure can be altered such that no increase in total fees is caused." There are a number of places where fat can be lopped off of existing fees, yea, even unto the amount of $25.00.

To start with, there is $15.00 being charged for operating a co-rec building that doesn't even exist yet! It's about time to blow the whistle on the practice of paying for an architect's dream.

Secondly, there is presently $5.50 being paid out of the $10.00 Activity Fee which will no longer be necessary when the new Health Fee is created.

Third, at the present time, the State of Illinois pays approximately $7.00 per student into the Health Service. Presumably, this could be used for the new system also.

These charges easily amount to the expected $25.00 charge with a couple of bucks to spare. It seems apparent that there is plenty of room in the fee structure for the Health Fee if the present decadent rates are given a long overdue reappraisal.

It seems to us that in these times of "austerity and belt-tightening", any increase should be avoided if possible. The priorities of the past should not stagnate today's development. Student Government fully intends to oppose an increase in total fees and hopefully the University administration will join us in the effort to expand human services within the present funding resources.

He will be missed

To the Daily Egyptian:

Since my arrival at Southern Illinois University in September, 1963, I have found the productions of The Southern Dancers, under the direction of W. Grant Gray, to be one of the real high spots in my education-social life. Indeed, Dr. Gray is one of the finest choreographer-writer-directors in the country. On the aesthetic level, Gray's work provides a sensory catharsis in a masterful integration of the imagery of sound, space, and time. Moreover, his aesthetic power is enhanced by the way he integrates meaningful social commentary with the form of dance, making the productions pertinent and important, as well as artistically beautiful.

I am sorry to hear of Dr. Gray's departure from SIU. It will mark a serious blow on SIU's cultural and intellectual scene. I, for one, will greatly miss the learning and renewing experiences his productions have been.

Unsolved crimes

the woods. Your reference to "police in full riot gear, ready to bust any would be criminal" is extremely ridiculous, but a good attempt to try and get away from the main point.

One last point—if as you say the security police do in fact "give a damn" and are out to serve the university to the fullest extent—I would like to see them get their "asses in gear" and start protecting as well as serving. There have been too many crimes and not enough anti-crime action.

Discredited regimes

To the Daily Egyptian:

Nguyen Hong Phan and Kyu Young Chou (May-9) support their colleague's disruption at a talk by visiting Vietnamese on the grounds that these speakers were presenting "distorted information." Like the Kuomintang enthusiasts who harassed Jack Chen at his talk on China, these are hatchet men of discredited regimes.

Mr. Chai impinges Douglas Allen with racism. But you should know who the true racists are. Those Americans who still condone the massacre in Vietnam must have been seeing TV pictures of mutilated or dead Vietnamese day in and day out. Would they tolerate such horrors if visited on their own people?

You take pride in your flag. But surely you know that many of your leaders were fighting under the French flag against their own countrymen who led your people out of colonialism. Are you sure now that the flag you salute is not cut from the same cloth as the Stars and Stripes? Don't you know that the Republic of Vietnam is an American child who cannot survive once the American crutches are removed?

You must have heard that your countrymen will be immersed in a "Vietnamese bloodbath" if the Americans pull out. Those saying this are the same people dropping napalm and antipersonnel bombs on your people. Don't you think these murderers have unmitigated gall? Christ says that even the Devil can quote from the Scripture.

You have also heard charges of "invasion" and "aggression" directed your Communist countrymen. We all know these terms apply only to the actions of a foreign power in the domestic affairs of another nation. If you read the Geneva Agreements you will note that the two halves of Vietnam were never intended to be separated for more than a few years and that the temporary division was not to be regarded as an international boundary. The Diem regime backed by the U.S. thwarted a resolution of the issue by refusing to hold the required elections.

Americans can say, what's the point of being the greatest nation since Creation if you cannot thumb your nose at the rest of the world occasionally? To hell with the U.N. for admitting China before we told them to. To hell with your pesky little boundaries; we cross them when we like and we will draw our own boundaries around you.

But where does this leave you and me, citizens of small nations?

So think carefully of who your friends and enemies are. Are they people like Senators McGovern and Church, the few who have spoken with any genuineness about the suffering of your countrymen, prolonged and intensified by Americans? Are they crypto-racist international bullies like Goldwater, Connally and William Buckley?

Are you, Mr. Chou and Mr. Phan, friend or enemies of your less fortunate peasant countrymen? Do you seek only to enrich yourselves at their expense, like many generals who are so busy smuggling opium, running brothels and other get-rich schemes, or scrambling on board American helicopters to desert men, that they cannot lead their soldiers much less the nation?

Leader, not dictator

To the Daily Egyptian:

It is very disturbing, and annoying that all Dr. Kwame Nkrumah could be remembered for at the news of his death is that he was a "dictator". All the major U.S. television stations covering the news referred to him as a "controversial dictator who once ruled Ghana." The Daily Egyptian also called him "ex-dictator". This is rather unfortunate.

To many Ghanaians, Nkrumah, nicknamed Osagyefo, was a very good leader. To many Africans, he was one of the chief advocates of the symbols and one of the forces for African unity. More than that, he wanted for all Africans true African identity, away from the "African-European" or "pseudo-African" identity which European colonialism in Africa brought to Africa. He appealed for the best in us Africans and helped in disorientating the Western orientation "hang-ups" the Europeans successfully passed into us.

A graduate of American and English universities, he returned to the Gold Coast, as Ghana was then known, to fight for the people's self-government and independence. This landed him in jail as the "colonial masters" did not want to hear anything about independence for Africans at that time. Some still won't even today! This was in the 1940's to 1950's. The jail sentence merely made him more determined personally to see his people free, and it also made him more popular with the people. In 1957 Nkrumah led Gold Coast to independence. Until he was overthrown in a military take over in 1966, he fought hard to see justice and fair play all Africans in particular and all Black people in general. He believed very strongly in African unity and saw this as one of the important ways for Africa to be truly independent. He would have nothing to do with the die-hard racist minority governments of some southern African countries (example: Rhodesia and South Africa).

Yet in death, all Nkrumah could be remembered for is that he was a dictator. One wonders if these worthwhile, patriotic facts about Nkrumah made him a dictator. I ask: dictator to who? What makes a dictator? What makes a hero? One can sense why he is so lauded though. After all, at the time he was overthrown from power in Ghana, he was in Peking visiting on his way to Hanoi. Does one have to see a leader necessarily evil and unfit to lead just because he does not share one's ideologies, philosophies and values?

Nkrumah had his shortcomings, slips and what might be described as "unforgivable" mistakes; but he was only human, so were Lincoln and Churchill. His achievements and good deeds for us, his people (Africans that is), far outweigh his blunders. Africans have in Nkrumah's death lost an extremely important leader—we loved him, he loved his people and his land. He did accomplish but only very little of his aims and goals, yet he, being only human, has to answer to nature's call, that is death.

Definitions

To the Daily Egyptian:

When one journey's across continents to pick up an education, involving not a change in major, but an addition of one, the resultant culture-shock imbues one with a renewed awareness and slanted appreciation. Then words of things acquire a new dimension and new definitions emerge. In spite of Hebrew wrath and kang-clang, one would be highly unselfish if one does not share these definitions.

Dissect—Based on the concept that the rightness of an argument is directly proportional to the loudness of the arguments. By extension this theory means that Viet-Cong, Radical-Chic, Mitz-Pen and the Bihari Collaborator are right and should be obeyed.

Front-Runner—The Liberal-Media-Anointed snow-figures who melt at the first sign of reality. Another proof of the wisdom of the press. Not confined to United States.

Higher Journalism—Acquiring a fighter's halo while committing larceny.

Liberal—A man who knows all the answers but does not follow his own solutions. Generally starts wars and asks for instant withdrawal if others are near a solution.

Naderism—Laura Partridge on a smaller screen with a periodic presentation and fast acquiring a touch of Gobbels.

People's right to know (the United States Senate version)—Re-enacting Frank Capra without Jimmy Stewart's grace. (The silly thing is that Ted Stevens is not a suicidal type.)

Vietnam War—A verbal conflict involving one hand the egos of the Pundits of the media, the instant-solution-manufacturers of the academics, and on the other hand a trying-to-save-face administration.

The So-Called Military Genius of Giap (who defeated the French, and come to think of it, when did the French fight in the Twentieth Century?)—Supplies the human fodder.

Vietnam Debate—Brink-Man Ship versus Brick-manship.

And lastly, portions of St. Mathew—seem to be rewritten in the following way: Blessed are the brick-throwers for they shall adorn the evening news show, inherit the columns of the Egyptian, and keep the war going.

Mad money

To the Daily Egyptian:

I may not be an economics major but I am usually able to add. This time I must be wrong. According to my calculations the four apartments in the building where I live cost $4,500 per year to rent (14 rooms, 4 baths, 4 kitchens, utilities and garbage pick-up); my father pays $2,760 per year in house payments (11½ rooms, 4 walk-in closets, 2 baths, 2 kitchens, a full basement and an attic) Within these two buildings, living fairly comfortably, reside or have resided 10 and 15 people respectively. (The 15 are all one family).

$43,000! Somebody has "got" to be kidding. I'd bet that for about the same price we could buy David a nice little bungalow (to include landscaping) and with the $18,000 provide enough furnishings to overfill it. I'm assuming that there are fewer than 15 in his family, in which case he should be relatively comfortable. Now that the Bored's problem of what to do with this year's mad money, I'd like to suggest a few things to use up the next few years rent: rehire a few graduate assistants, insure the retention of the textbook rental (please don't force me to cut food out of my budget), keep the library open a decent number of hours, hire more student workers—don't worry, untrustworthies, I'm sure we can find things to blow it on.

Apathy is...

To the Daily Egyptian:

Apathy is the cornerstone to life. Without apathy where would we all be now. We would have cured the diseases of hatred, war, hunger, prejudice and violence. But thanks to apathy we still have these fine social problems to intellectualize over. Discussion past the point of conspiracy constitutes action, the antithesis of apathy. Do not be fooled, there are certain professors in this University who refuse to be content with apathy. These misguided fools, though their number is small, threaten to wreck the material for discussion in future University classes.

Cling to apathy, follow the example set by the majority of citizens, industrial leaders, politicians and administrators of multi-universities. All attempts must be made to exalt and worship these individuals. When they tell you they are building a million dollar home for the president, rejoice and praise his name for his fine deeds of the past. When they tell you they cannot make a pollution-free car by 1975, reply as Falstaff does: "We're All In This Together". When your President tells you the war will end and it doesn't, say: "He Tried But He Couldn't Do It" and "Dick Nixon In '72".

Apathy is winning and only through your fine efforts at inaction will this continue to be the story. It is not an easy victory, but the peace of mind at five o'clock makes the battle worthwhile.

Daily Egyptian Opinion & Commentary

EDITORIALS—The Daily Egyptian encourages free discussion of current issues through editorials and letters on these pages. Editorials—labeled Opinion—are written and signed by members of the student news staff and by students enrolled in journalism courses, and represent opinions of the authors only.

LETTERS—Readers are invited to express their opinions in letters which must be signed with name, classification and major, or faculty rank, address and telephone number. Letters should be typewritten, and their length should not exceed 250 words. Letter writers should respect the generally accepted standards of good taste and are expected to make their points in terms of issues rather than personalities. Acceptance for publication will depend on limitations of space and the timeliness and relevance of the material. Unsigned letters will not be accepted, and authorship of all letters must be verified by the Daily Egyptian. It is the responsibility of the Daily Egyptian to determine content of the opinion pages. Other materials on pages four and five include editorials and articles reprinted from other publications, syndicated columns and articles, and interpretive or opinion articles authored locally.

Anti-gun editorial draws reply

To the Daily Egyptian:

As with all other anti-gun types, Mahsman has shown that he is long on rhetoric and short on facts. Let's look at his items one by one.

First is "Register Communists, not guns". If attendees to Communists meetings and helpers in Communist activities had been registered both Oswald and Sirhan would at least have been registered, and perhaps they might have been under surveillance. If the latter had been true, both Kennedys might be alive today.

Next, take "If guns are outlawed, only outlaws will have guns". New York City is a good example of this, as is New York State. They have the strictest gun laws in the nation, yet they lead in criminal homicide. While the average citizen in New York cannot own a handgun, the recent epidemic of gangland killings clearly indicated that outlaws had guns. All of these men were known criminals, yet neither state nor federal men did anything to deprive them of guns.

As far as knives are concerned, Brutus did a pretty good job with one. Knife killings have continued well through history, and could happen again.

Had Mahsman been honest with his statistics and presented all of the data, he would have to admit there is a negative correlation between gun laws and homicides per hundred thousand people. That is, that lower homicide rates correlate with increased gun ownership. The reason appears to be that the criminal type is less likely to attempt crime when there is a chance that his victim may be armed.

New York Police Commissioner Patrick Murphy is hardly the man to listen to on crime control in view of his miserable performance in control of crime, as mentioned above. While known criminals are free to own guns, his police have been found taking cap guns from children. Perhaps the kids did not know whom to pay off. His comments on the dangers of gun ownership are as poor as his crime prevention. An accident study recently issued by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company revealed that the rate of fatal firearms accidents is the lowest of all accident rates. The gun rate per hundred thousand was 2.1, while for death by fire it was 4.4, for drowning it was 5.1, for falls it was 9.5, and for motor vehicles it was 47.2. If you own a car you are in much greater danger of killing yourself and others than if you own guns. You are also in greater danger of death if you live or work in a building, if you walk, or if you swim. Yes sir, you can sure believe good old Pat Murphy.

What politicians are really for and what they say they are for is not always the case. Nixon is an example of that. With unarmed citizens, with no death penalty, and with New York type police, it is clear that crime can easily become the number one national problem. Having set up this situation, the anti-gun politicians could then claim that since gun laws have failed, what we really need is the police state, with these politicians in charge. Could this be possible? You decide.

As for "Guns don't kill people, people kill people," this is so clear that even any anti-gun fanatic should realize its truth. As soon as he can find guns that kill all by themselves, he should notify the Army. They can send these guns to Viet Nam and bring the troops home.

Anyone who claims you can just walk across state lines and buy a gun either has not read the 1968 Gun Control Act or has not tried it. Only crooked politicians in conspiracy with equally dishonest Treasury Department officials can get away with this. Mayor Lindsay demonstrated this when he announced over the CBS evening news that he had purchased a handgun in Florida. If he bought the gun himself the gun dealer was guilty of violation of the 1968 Gun Control Act. A newspaper story later claimed a campaign worker who bought the gun either gave or sold it to Lindsay. In this case Lindsay is a liar and the campaign worker is guilty of violating the 1968 Gun Control Act. So far there is no indication that the Treasury has made any attempt to prosecute either the gun dealer or the campaign worker. If you are really concerned with illegal use of guns and illegal gun purchases, you might demand the U.S. Treasury enforce the law. This is federal corruption.

As far as the NRA is concerned, it and other gun organizations have worked for laws which penalize the criminal use of guns. Laws demanding severe penalties for gun crimes passed the legislatures in both New York and Illinois only to be vetoed by Rockefeller in New York and by Kerner in Illinois. Kerner is now under indictment himself and Rockefeller can hardly claim ignorance of the crime in New York.

If you actually wish to curtail crime you will join with the NRA in their efforts to pass laws which strike at the criminal rather than at the law abiding citizen who is already the victim of crime.

Sex objects?

To the Daily Egyptian:

I can sympathize to a certain extent with a few areas of the Women's Liberation movement. However, I feel that the cause would be much more effective and less hypocritical if these ladies got their sweet little minds out of the clouds and came down to reality.

I have to laugh when I see a girl with her boobs hanging out of her blouse and her crotch straining through her pants complaining, "All you men think about is sex."

As far as the sex object role is concerned, no girl has ever been forced to pose nude for "Playboy Magazine" at gunpoint. As far as I can tell, they all did it of their own free will. The point I am trying to make is that most women become sex objects through their own actions. No man (with the exception of rape which is highly punishable) forces a chick to go to bed with him. She does it willingly. Has he made her into a sex object or has she made herself into one?

As far as the discrimination part goes, I wonder how many American women have been forced to sit in a foxhole, wondering if they will live to see the next day.

I asked a Women's Lib girl why she didn't register for the draft and face the hassles of being a man if she wanted to partake in the so-called benefits of being a male.

She weasled out of this one by saying, "Oh, Women's Lib people don't believe in the draft."

Come off your cloud, ladies. Which is worse? Having your name written on a restroom wall or being shot at?

Could it be that you are so wrapped up in your little worries, desires and hates that you have no time to think about anything else? Perhaps if some so-called liberated women would stop acting like sex objects, they might stop being treated as such.

Public thanks

To the Daily Egyptian:

I would like to express my appreciation to the managers of the Saluki Cinema, Fox-Eastgate, Variety, and Campus Drive-in theatres for their cooperation in avoiding scheduling MASH and Cheyenne Social Club in their individual theatres. This is just one more reason why our double-feature production did come off well this past weekend. It is not unusual to find the Carbondale merchants helpful in the carrying out of student-oriented activities but it is extremely rare that they are commended publicly for their actions. Thank you.

Super male chauvinist

To the Daily Egyptian:

I couldn't resist a few comments in reply to the escalating anti-chicken movement out there.

Bob Ekstrand has referred women to our dictionaries to learn about male chauvinism. I would like to return the favor by directing him to a MIRROR.

Mrs. Dorothy V. Bryant is proud of being Mrs. as she well should be. She certainly has nothing to point to with pride in terms of her own merits. She is, as she so aptly puts it, "just an average-run-of-the-mill civil service employee who never does anything outstanding." No, Mrs. Bryant, my women's liberation activities are not born out of jealousy for you and your kind, but rather out of fear of becoming like you.

Ms. Boulet, carrying the analogy one step farther, if God had meant "typical male attire" to be indelibly masculine, men would be born wearing pants.

It is depressing but true that following the chicken episode with its token conference between the women involved and Daily Egyptian representatives, women must continue to see their sex made a mock of in tasteless and dull cartoons. Perhaps other women found the cartoon comment "I hope he didn't forget his screwdriver" hilarious when it appeared in Super Student on May 31. Super Stud's taking to the skies with 800 screaming co-eds (read chicks) was not only a poor excuse for humor, but also highly offensive.

Maybe I am losing my sense of humor, but would black people laugh at a cartoon about blacks in which it is hoped that the white hero didn't forget his "black jack" to "take care of a few coons"?

Big brother and children

To the Daily Egyptian:

On May 17, 1972 the residents of Evergreen Terrace received a Memorandum from Mr. Robert Maurath, Assistant Housing Director at SIU. The subject of this handout was a proposed rent increase of $10.00 for a two-bedroom apartment and $12.00 for a three-bedroom apartment monthly, that the University had requested the Federal Housing Authority to Approve.

Mr. Charles Walker, F.H.A. representative, stated at a Special Evergreen Terrace Council Meeting on May 16, 1972 that he would recommend a rate increase within the range of $2.50 to $5.00 per month per apartment. He stated the increase would not be greater than $5.00 monthly.

Superficially, the increase does not seem unreasonable. The residents of Evergreen Terrace feel differently. We feel we are getting the same type of deal as the tenants of University Trailer Court were handed. Those of us living in Evergreen Terrace feel no rent increase is called for. Why? Because the problem in our particular housing area is exorbitant maintenance cost for too little, too shoddy, or practically non-existent work. We are caught in the "battle of the unions."

Only a Physical Plant laborer can replace an outside hall light bulb for us. He is union. For this "strenuous" (and time consuming) tour-de-force he receives approximately $5.25 hourly—a figure which Mr. Maurath grudgingly agreed to at our May 16th meeting. Yet we at the Terrace could replace these bulbs ourselves for no charge at all.

Mr. Walker told our council that an audit was our only recourse. However, we must give him proof of faulty maintenance in order to halt the proposed rent increase.

The Council of Evergreen Terrace feels that the maintenance-call records kept by the Terrace maintenance office will be more than sufficient evidence for Mr. Walker to conduct an audit. We have asked for these records. We feel we have a right to them.

Thus far, however, we have been given the typical University administrative run-around, i.e., no records are forthcoming. After all, no institution wants to incriminate itself. Our audit might step on a few toes....

Taking the above situations and much more at face value, on May 23, 1972 the Evergreen Terrace Advisory Council met and passed the following motions:

(1) That we would call for the Federal Housing Authority to audit the University books as they pertain to the Terrace;

(2) That we would okay an audit through private concerns should FHA audit be played down or overly delayed.

Perhaps we are obstreperous or ignorant small children for questioning the dictums of our benevolent "big brother" (the University)....

Perhaps. But at least we are honest children. That is why we have passed these motions requesting an audit. That is why we want our decisions in print.

Locusts swarm in woods

By Pat Nussman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The 13-year cicada, commonly known as locust, has again emerged from the Southern Illinois soil and is swarming in the wooded places of the area in the first such infestation since 1959.

"People are not really concerned about it, except that the cicada is so large and noisy," said John McPherson, entomologist in the Department of Zoology.

The adult cicadas who frequent the wooded areas will do no direct harm because of the mouth parts, which are sucking rather than chewing. There is no way to chew foliage with these mouth parts, he said.

What causes possible damage is when adult female cicadas lay eggs. To do this they slit open twigs and lay eggs in the slits. Later, the eggs will fall to the ground or the twigs will die and fall to the ground, McPherson said.

"If the tree is a young tree, it can be greatly injured; if it is a large tree it would not be hurt so badly," McPherson said. "A smaller tree just can't take it."

The University of Illinois College of Agriculture has suggested to farmers that young trees can be covered with netting to prevent tree damage. Also trees can be sprayed with carbaryl when egg-laying begins.

In this area, the cicada can be found in counties south of a line from Quincy to Springfield and from Bloomington to Danville.

They are called 13-year cicadas because they only have an outbreak every 13 years, McPherson said. The 13-year period is spent underground, in the immature or nymph stage, where they feed on roots.

At the end of the nymph stage, the cicadas climb out of the ground onto trees and fence posts, where the adult will emerge out of the nymphal skin. When they appear in the adult stage they will indulge in a short feeding period, mate (the saw-like noise coming from the cicadas is the male mating call) and again lay the eggs, McPherson said.

The average life span of the adult cicada is 30 to 40 days.

The time when the cicadas emerge from the soil can be pretty closely estimated, according to McPherson. The College of Agriculture of the University of Illinois and the Natural History Survey predicted that they would emerge on May 25 and some people in Southern Illinois found them on May 24, he said.

McPherson said that several thousand cicadas may emerge from the ground from under one large tree.

Mine explosion traps 468; rescue operations continue

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP)—A coal mine explosion entombed 468 Rhodesian miners Tuesday, and hopes for their survival dimmed after 10 hours of rescue efforts failed to establish contact.

Officials of the Wankie colliery in northwestern Rhodesia refused to comment on the fate of the workers. But a spokesman who reported the underground blast said there was no indication the 435 Africans and 33 whites had survived. Their deaths would make the blast the worst mining disaster in Rhodesia's history.

A relative of one of the trapped miners said he had been at the mine and "they are still working on trying to get them out."

Unofficial reports said six bodies had been recovered from the mine, 200 miles north of Bulawayo in the northern part of this East African country.

Summer theater to be featured

A series of seven plays and musicals will be presented, during the summer quarter as "Summer Theater 72," by the College of Communications and Fine Arts.

They will be: "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying," beginning July 6; "The Girls in 509," beginning July 14; "Wonderful Town," beginning July 20; "Anastasia," beginning July 28; "Hello, Dolly!," beginning August 4; "You Never Can Tell," beginning August 18; and "The Land of the Dragon," the children's play, beginning August 2.

Robert Harrell, president of the local chapter of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP), Tuesday repeated his invitation to the University community to testify before an AAUP investigating committee concerning tenure.

The committee, to be at SIU June 15-17, is mainly to investigate the case of Douglas M. Allen, assistant professor of philosophy who was denied tenure, but also will investigate conditions of academic freedom and tenure at SIU generally, he said.

The members of the committee will be Wilson Thiede of the University of Wisconsin at Madison, John Granorse of the University of Georgia, and Carol Stern of Roosevelt University.

Anyone wishing to testify should contact Robert Harrell.

Is monorail answer to parking woes?

Editor's Note: This is the second of two articles on campus parking and transportation problems.

By Sue Millen
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Is a monorail system the answer to the University's parking and on-campus transportation problems?

Support for the idea is considerable, but hardly unanimous.

In fact, some people aren't convinced there is a problem. Former SIU President Robert G. Lyster, for instance, has said:

"The question we must answer is what percentage of this campus really thinks there is a problem? If it's only a minority then I see no reason to spend millions of dollars for a monorail system," he said.

A class in campus governance surveyed student opinion on the question and found 88.8 per cent of those interviewed believe there is a parking problem. The survey got 130 responses from 150 students randomly selected by the Registrar's Office.

Of those interviewed, 69.2 per cent said they favor a monorail system from outlying parking lots to the main campus, and 58.2 per cent said they favor an inner campus system for transportation between buildings.

Melvin S. Brooks, former Traffic and Parking Advisory Committee chairman, believes the proposed monorail appears to be the most satisfactory solution to the problem.

"After a thorough study comparing surface parking lots, garage parking and remote parking lots using a bus system for transportation to campus, the monorail looks the best," he said.

"It would have the most far-reaching effects and contributions measured in terms of time, land, money and efficiency," Brooks said.

John Loneragan, SIU campus planner, explained the proposal has two parts. Phase I provides transportation from the parking area to the campus. It would be funded by fees estimated at $25-35 per year for 20 years. Total cost for Phase I has been estimated at $6,510,000.

It calls for the construction of two large parking lots—one near the Arena and one near University Farms. The monorail would carry commuters from the large parking lots to a point on campus near the Agriculture Building.

The rail system, using 48 cars with two-minute intervals between the trains, would be capable of carrying 3,600 passengers in 30 minutes. By reducing the starting times, the carrying capacity could be increased to 8,000 persons per 30-minute period, Loneragan said.

The monorail cars would operate 14 feet above ground and would be free of all surface obstructions or traffic. Carlton Rasche, director of Auxiliary and Service Enterprises, said he is in favor of the monorail primarily because it would operate off the ground and use only two operators.

The two operators would view the entire operation on closed-circuit television from a central control booth located near the Physical Plant.

Loneragan estimated maintenance costs would not exceed $100,000 per year—compared with more than $500,000 to maintain a bus system.

Phase II calls for expansion of the first system to span the inner campus and all the major buildings on it. It would be funded by an additional $10 in fees for 18 years. Loneragan thinks that everyone using the system, including faculty members, would have to be charged a flat rate, because a pay-as-you-ride system would be inefficient.

He said it would take one train 4½ minutes to circle the campus.

Loneragan explained that the rails would be supported by beams at 70-foot intervals. Stations would be constructed on the sides of existing buildings. Future buildings would be constructed around the rails, allowing the trains to pass through the building.

The feasibility of the monorail plan, according to Loneragan, depends upon the relocation of U.S. 51. Jack Martel, of the District Nine Highway Office, estimated that it will be seven years before actual construction on the relocation of the highway can begin.

Martel said an Economic Impact Study on the by-pass and how it will affect the city and the surrounding area is being made.

The Carbondale City Council recently voted to reconsider the highway relocation after hearing objections that a planned route west of the campus would increase traffic congestion.

Loneragan said it will take 13 months to build the monorail system and he hopes construction could begin in the near future. Martel, however, said the monorail system should not be built until the highway relocation matter is settled.

Plans for the monorail system are just about complete and a referendum on the proposal by the University community had been scheduled for spring quarter. However, after the City Council voted to reconsider the relocation of U.S. 51, President David R. Derge called off the campus vote.

Loneragan said control of the project and its operation should be within the University community.

"Since the University community will own the system I suggest that shares be issued to the owners with an equal vote for all shareholders. This is a business proposition and I think it should be handled that way," he said.

"This is a University project and if the University community votes to reject it that's their decision. I like the idea and I honestly don't see any other feasible solution to the campus parking and traffic problem," Loneragan said.

Murphysboro man charged in Sunday night rape case

A Murphysboro man was arrested early Monday morning and charged with the rape of an 18-year-old Carbondale woman Sunday night.

Ernest Morefield, 25, was arrested at his home about 2 a.m. Monday and taken to Jackson County Jail in Murphysboro. He was formally charged with rape and battery.

The woman told police she was hitchhiking from Carbondale to Murphysboro late Sunday evening when her assailant picked her up. He drove to a rural road north of Carbondale and raped her, then took her to Murphysboro, she said, where she was released.

Three SIU students were among eight people arrested in a drug raid by state police early Tuesday morning. Charged with possession of cannabis were Allen Magenheimer, 20, Chenoa; Billy Schulte, 21, Bourbonnais; and Gregg Politisch, 19, Mendota.

Also taken into custody were Mike D. Wise, 19, Mt. Vernon; Victoria Miller, 18, Pinckneyville; Royann Pike, 18, Oklahoma City; Thomas Coulson, 22, who gave no address; and a minor.

Police reported another in a series of vending machines break-ins at local residence halls. An undetermined amount of cash was taken from the washing machine in Wright Hall I about 9 a.m. Monday.

A black leather coat was reported stolen Monday afternoon from the room of Valerie Young, 22, Neely Hall.

Mark Lobl, Carbondale, reported the weekend theft of more than $1,800 worth of stereo equipment from his unlocked apartment.

A camera and lens valued at $250 were stolen from the car of David Melcher, Carbondale, over the weekend.

Allen Syprzak, Carbondale, reported the theft of several auto parts from his car Sunday night.

A purse containing almost $200 was reported stolen from her car while it was parked at the J.C. Penney store Monday. Vickie Upchurch, Carbondale, told police.

Joseph Kowalczyk, Darrel Storbeck and Peggy Walsh, all of Carbondale, reported their bicycles were stolen.

Kontum completely cleared of enemy troops

SAIGON (AP) - The vital central highlands provincial capital of Kontum has been completely cleared of enemy troops after 12 days of assaults by North Vietnamese forces, government field officers announced Tuesday.

The U.S. Command announced that American fighter-bombers on Monday launched the most devastating raids on the canals, rivers and lakes of North Vietnam since full-scale retaliatory bombing resumed two months ago. The U.S.

planes reported shattering more than 100 supply boats.

U.S. pilots flew more than 220 strikes over the North, concentrating on crippling Hanoi's inland waterway transportation system to prevent war supplies from moving south, officers said. The strikes also knocked out eight bridges scattered across North Vietnam, they added.

The advances in Kontum followed days of probes around three key positions in the town's north and southeast sectors held by the enemy. There were indications snipers remained in an area just north of the airstrip. But South Vietnamese spokesmen in Pleiku reported Kontum cleared of enemy troops by late afternoon.

Government units attacked a Kontum military hospital and the former armored cavalry compound before dawn. Moving behind American air support and ground artillery, they reported killing 166 enemy while suffering one dead and one wounded.

Government spokesmen said enemy casualties were so high because "it appeared they didn't want to resist and they ran." Most were killed by pursuing government troops using small arms, he added.

North Vietnamese forces in residential areas of the south-eastern part of the town were flushed out over the weekend and the last remnants were cleared in the north after five separate skirmishes, officers said. U.S. sources estimate the Saigon command has lost 1,000 dead and wounded while killing 3,000 to 5,000 North Vietnamese since fighting started in Kontum on May 25.

American B52 bombers and lighter aircraft have steadily battered enemy positions around the town, and helicopter gunships were used in the heavy assaults Tuesday, field reports said.

Sporadic enemy pressure continued on highways and fire bases elsewhere in the highlands. Three rounds of fire fell north of the air base at Pleiku, 27 miles below Kontum, but no casualties were reported.

Paratroopers on the northern front above Hue battled a North Vietnamese force of unknown size, killing 35, a spokesman said.

The action took place about one mile south of the My Chanh River defense line, several miles from another fight Monday which killed 27 enemy and two government troops, he reported.

Ground fighting was light elsewhere.

The intensified bombing campaign over North Vietnam was described as successful by one senior U.S. official.

Tear gas report to be released

By Daryl Stephenson
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A spokesman at the Student Affairs Office said Tuesday that the findings of an investigating committee's report on tear-gassing incidents May 12 in the Brush Towers area will be made public "as soon as possible."

The spokesman said that George Mace, assistant to the president for student affairs, has been attempting to get a copy of the report, now in the possession of Jackson County State's Attorney Ron Briggs, since Friday but had been unable to do so. Mace was out of town Tuesday, but the spokesman said that Mace will release the report as soon as a copy is obtained.

The report, which is the result of an investigation ordered by President David R. Derge, contains information and statements from various residents in the Brush Towers area and is each person's interpretation of what he saw.

It was prepared by a joint committee of students and staff from the area, and was delivered to Derge by Jefferson Humphrey, assistant dean of students. The report was then sent to Briggs by University Legal Counsel Richard Mager May 18, for what University officials said last week was "further investigation."

Briggs said a week ago he had not received the report from University officials. However, Briggs later was quoted in a new report as saying he had received the report from Mager, but that he had not received any requests for further investigation.

Briggs reportedly said he would investigate the incidents only if he received a request in writing from the Jackson County Sheriff, Carbondale Police Chief, SIU Security Police Chief or Derge.

If any allegations of crime had made against anyone or any department, Briggs said, his office would have investigated, but he said no such allegations were made.

"I don't intend to release the report," Briggs said, "but I certainly have no objections if Mace wants to disclose the contents."

Briggs was unavailable for comment Tuesday.

The investigation had been ordered after two cannisters of tear gas were thrown into entrances of Schneider Tower about 1:25 a.m. on May 12. Witnesses said one of the cannisters was thrown into the main lobby of the building by either a Carbondale or state policeman. The other cannister was thrown into the "C" wing of Schneider about the same time.

One witness claimed he saw an officer in a blue uniform enter and leave the wing at the time the second cannister was thrown.

Carbondale born out of railroad

By David Bradshaw
Student Writer

Carbondale, it can be said, was born out of the railroad.

In the summer of 1852 the Illinois Central Railroad announced that a major north south artery would be built through Jackson County. Daniel Harmon Brush, then living in Murphysboro, had decided that as soon as the railroad was announced he would attempt to establish a new settlement along the line.

It is believed that the founding of the city was stimulated in part by squabbles between Brush and political rivals in Murphysboro. Because of this friction Brush decided to seek a new site for his mercantile business.

Prompted by this, Brush set out in early August of 1852 searching for a new town site. After reaching a small improved lot owned by John Brewster, Brush wrote, "Here we were compelled to leave our horses and pick our way as best we could through a dense mass of vines, briars and tangled underbrush until we found the line of the road. It was a wilderness of forest and dense undergrowth of hazel bushes, wild grapes and running rose vines all over the surface of the ground."

Brush decided on a fairly level tract of land that laid on a direct line from Marion to Murphysboro. Then, Brush reports in his diary, he purchased the southwest quarter of Section 21 for $300 in cash.

However, rail support was still essential to the proposed community so Brush conferred with Lewis W. Ashley, chief engineer of the southern division of the Illinois Central, to insure that the rail line would pass by his land. Ashley was at first skeptical and unimpressed, but after a careful study of railroad maps and surveys he approved the plan.

Later that same year the town was laid out and the timber removed from the principal streets. The town square, which would be the central commercial district, was bisected by the railroad track, which ran north and south, and Main Street, which ran east and west. This railroad claimed 12 acres along the track for strictly railroad purposes.

Other original streets cut out of the wilderness included North Jackson, East Washington, South Monroe and West Illinois. Later, "the second street on the west of the square was named Missouri because folks from Missouri crossed the river and came up into town that way." After the University was established, the name was changed to Normal and changed again to its present name of University.

It was a cold blustery January day in 1853 when the first public sale of lots was held, and still a large number of persons attended the sale. A clause was included in the sale which forbade the sale of any intoxicating liquor in the town. Several persons, who had come for the express purpose of setting up a saloon, left in disgust when they heard the terms.

But through the years there was much opposition to the prohibitory law. Some tried to evade it or even defy it. The most colorful of these characters was Major James Hampton.

By 1854, the Illinois Central had completed the track between Cairo and Carbondale and July 4th was designated the day the first train would come up from the south to the new station. The news was spread throughout the area weeks in advance and a carnival-like atmosphere surrounded the occasion.

Most had never seen a train before and a multitude of people gathered hours before arrival time. The freight house had just been completed and a dinner was held inside.

Major Hampton was appointed marshal of the day and when the train arrived he could scarcely keep the people off the track in front of the advancing train. But the day passed with no incident.

Some showers fell that day, enough to help fill Brush's new milldam, but that was to be the last rain for over six months. The corn crop failed, the grass dried up, the livestock starved and the people would have to live if the railroad hadn't been completed.

Corn was shipped in at $2 a bushel, which was a high price. But it saved the lives of the people and some of the stock.

In contrast, the next year was one of great prosperity. The Crimean War in Europe had shut down the great wheat-producing regions of Russia and world wheat prices more than doubled.

Wheat was harvested by hand with cradles and bound by hand, which was grueling work in the broiling heat of late summer. But merchants in Carbondale were demanding wheat and the town was filled with farmers' wagons. 1855 was a profitable year for Carbondale.

The Civil War came and went, and for the most part this sleepy little town missed out on the action. Most of the men were called away to fight for the north and a guard was set up on the Big Muddy railroad bridge, but the fighting bypassed Carbondale to the south.

The post-war years were years of prosperity and building. At one time there were about a dozen cotton-gins in town, so that in autumn the place looked much like a southern town. Cotton was everywhere and bales were piled up at the depot ready for shipment. The price of cotton was high and money was plentiful.

Along with cotton great quantities of tobacco and grain was grown in the area and at harvest time trains of ox carts could be seen bringing their loads into town.

Agriculture was the principal industry of the early years. Coal was also plentiful in the surrounding area and the community was first referred to as Mount Carbon. This was later changed to Carbondale, at the suggestion of Brush, when the town was incorporated and a government organized in 1856.

A view of the economic and social life in the 1870's in Carbondale was written by Fred Richart. According to Richart, a journey to Carbondale in the 1870's was a gala occasion. Several days were usually spent in preparation for the trip. The grain was loaded the night before in order to get an early start the next morning. Part of the trip was made over

No passengers tonight

"corduroy" road. Richard wrote, "it was something terrible to ride over," so he walked over this stretch.

"All around the square were hitch racks for the teams that came to town," said Richart. "Those who made short calls hitched to the rack, traded and left. More made it a day and halted their teams to the side or rear of the wagon, fed them corn and hay and watered them at the several public wells at the street intersections."

But, Carbondale was soon to change. By 1913 the railroad and new industries became the dominant theme, and a new university started in 1874 was to change the town forever.

The first college in Carbondale was sponsored by the Christian denomination. The name of the institution was "Southern Illinois College" and before that "Carbondale College."

Through pressure by area residents, the State Legislature passed in 1869 a bill approving the establishment of a Normal University in Southern Illinois.

Every major town in this area wanted the prize and several towns bid more than they could ever hope to pay. Carbondale was finally selected when it offered $100,000 and a large tract of land southwest of town.

One large gothic looking building was built to house the new university. This building was to become known as Old Main and became the landmark and symbol of the university.

The building burned in 1883 but was rebuilt by 1887. When it was announced that money had been approved for the rebuilding, "the cannons were fired and balloons were sent up, and at night the people gathered in the square to rejoice and see fireworks."

That building again burned in 1969 and as of today has not been rebuilt.

Carbondale's growth during the period of 1914 to 1946 was interrupted by two world wars and the depression. However, there were several important developments: A new waterworks was built, streets and sidewalks were paved, SIU received limited university status and the town continued to grow in population.

This period was also important industrially. Many efforts were made to obtain industry and some were successful. The Good Luck Glove Company and the American Pants Factory were important successes, while the collapse of the Menzie Shoe Factory was the greatest failure.

At the end of the Second World War, Carbondale was on the threshold of a new period of development. The post war period has been dominated by two major developments: the loss of the city's major industries and the rapid growth of SIU.

SIU became the focus of economic activity in Carbondale. Business leaders centered their attention on the needs of SIU's students, faculty and staff.

The city lost its two major industries, the Good Luck Glove Company and the American Pants Factory. Workers sought employment at SIU, in surrounding communities and the Ordill Industrial Complex.

During the period from 1946 to today, Carbondale's economy underwent a change from a balance between industry, SIU and the railroad to one almost totally dominated by the university.

The last 12 years have been distinguished by exceedingly rapid growth in Carbondale. In Mark Hornerberger's book on Carbondale, he indicates that bank deposit, building permit, enrollment and population tables suggest that Carbondale will undergo even greater changes in the future.

Carbondale has had many elements which made it "all American." It was the story of a pioneer named Daniel Brush. It was the story of a frontier town and of a railroad-of failing industry and a growing university. But today Carbondale is mostly a story of a university and of the town which nourishes it.

A switch engine does its work on the Illinois Central tracks north of Carbondale.

New office to aid vets established

By Sue Miller
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A Veteran's Outreach Program and an eight member staff has been established on the SIU campus by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie and his Office of Human Resources.

Jack Odell, newly appointed coordinator for the program, said that the program will attempt to make veterans aware of government services and benefits available to them now that they are home.

The Office of Human Resources has 14 other "outreach" programs in college communities throughout the state. Every month approximately 4,000 Vietnam veterans return to Illinois. Odell said he and his staff are encouraging all veterans to drop by their office in Washington Square B Room 105 and check the lists of benefits and services offered by the state and federal government. "There may be some benefits that the average vet has overlooked," he added.

Among the benefits presently offered to veterans are: educational aid, veteran's childrens benefits, disability payments, widows' and dependents' benefits, housebound or confined veterans' benefits, parental benefits, burial reimbursement, GI home business loans, V.A. hospital care, state benefits and others.

Funding for the Outreach program has been provided through the State of Illinois Office of Human Resources as part of the Federal Emergency Employment Act.

The seven other veteran members of the Outreach Program staff are Bob Bockholder, junior majoring in occupational education; John B. Crafton, junior majoring in journalism; Joseph Douglas, a senior majoring in pre-law; Gaylord Herman, senior majoring in sociology; James Wilsey, senior majoring in administrative science; Robert Skinner, senior majoring in agriculture; and Michael Gillingham, junior majoring in administration of justice.

The primary responsibilities of the outreach staff are to contact veterans in the University and provide accurate information concerning their benefits and improvement of their educational or economic status.

Veteran Administration (VA) statistics show that 3.3 million have been trained or educated for some job during the last six years as compared with 2.4 million trained during the entire 15-year history of the GI bill.

The VA pays veterans with no dependents $175 a month while they attend school full-time; $205 monthly if they have one dependent and $230 if they have two dependents, plus $13 more for each additional dependent.

Hearing set for changing utility deposits

A hearing on revision of state regulations regarding credit deposits for utility companies will be held in Springfield on July 5.

Douglas A. Ingold, acting director of the Legal Assistance Foundation, is asking anyone who has suggestions on changes for the credit deposit system or who wants to help prepare testimony for the hearings to contact him. The Legal Assistance Foundation is located at 127 N. Washington in Carbondale, 549-4746 or 549-6522.

The Springfield hearing is in part the result of complaints filed earlier this year against the Central Illinois Public Service Company with the Illinois Commerce Commission Ingold said.

Carbondale grows rapidly in population, housing areas

By Robert W. Smith
Student Writer

Growth, growth and more growth has been Carbondale's experience since the town first organized 117 years ago.

But this growth has been markedly increased since the early 1960's, especially in the areas of population, housing, and planning and zoning development.

For instance, after leveling off at 14,690 in 1960, the population has nearly doubled. It is now an estimated 26,280.

The number of dwelling units in the city prior to 1960 is unknown, but since that time, 7,087 units have been built.

These population and construction booms have brought about changes and expansion of the city code enforcement department.

"This population growth has not left the city without 'growing pains,'" Elizabeth Leighty, city clerk, said.

Much of the local governmental structure has had to undergo changes to effectively handle the growth. For instance, the city changed to the council-manager form of government in 1966 and the city had to establish hundreds of new ordinances such as building codes, planning and zoning codes, and others. An increase in the size of the police and fire departments also has taken place, she said.

Ms. Leighty said other towns have requested copies of the city's ordinances to use as models.

John Yow, acting code enforcement director, said housing is one of Carbondale's major problems.

The population influx has caused a great need for construction and a complete overhaul and expansion of the city code enforcement agency, Yow said.

"We have as good, or better, code enforcement department than most cities," he said. He added that there are cities in Illinois that do not have code enforcement departments.

"In 1964, it was a one-man operation," he said, "but development has been so great the department now employs five persons."

An indication of the growth can be recognized by looking at the amount of new construction. Yow said.

Since 1960, there have been 932 newly constructed single-family units built. For the same period, there have been 1,410 multi-family units; 4,693 off-campus dormitory units; and 52 duplex developments.

The total cost of this new construction has been about $30 million, Yow said.

The Planning and Zoning Commission has had a full-time load because of the growth. Richard Greenwood, acting planning director, said.

"A lot of work and thought has gone into devising the best possible growth pattern for Carbondale," Greenwood said.

Greenwood said a complete and comprehensive plan, entitled the "1990 Land Use Plan", is currently being prepared that will "hopefully provide direction and serve as a guide for future development."

He said the plan covers four areas where growth problems generally arise. They are:

1. Land Use—this part of the plan establishes guidelines for evaluating areas for zoning, land annexation and effective utilization.

2. Thoroughfare—this part of the plan discusses, grades and provides for new streets as the city expands and develops.

3. Community Development—this part of the plan provides for parks, playgrounds, libraries, schools, community centers and public buildings.

4. Public Improvements—this part of the plan deals with expansion of sewer, water, waste-water treatment plants, filtration plants, streets and other public facilities.

Greenwood said he did not know when the plan would be completed, but he added "it will not be too much longer."

Development of housing units could mean more business firms must expand or enter the area market.

"Growth of the business firms in the Carbondale area has been steady and quite satisfactory," Raymond Lech, executive vice-president of the Carbondale Chamber of Commerce, said.

Lech said membership in the Chamber of Commerce has grown to about 350. This is up from about 225 members in 1967, he said.

Lech pointed out that recent figures show 993 different firms reported sales tax revenue from Carbondale to state officials.

"This is an indicator of the number of businesses in the area, Lech said.

Wallace moved to private room
SILVER SPRING, Md. (AP)—Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace was moved out of the intensive care unit and into a private room Monday at Holy Cross Hospital.

Elvin Stanton, a Wallace aide, said doctors are pleased at the rate of the governor's recovery.

Wallace was shot May 15 at a campaign rally in Laurel, Md. He has been in the intensive care unit of the hospital since that time.

Stanton quoted Dr. Joseph Schanno, who is treating the governor, as saying that Wallace is improving steadily. Stanton said Wallace will have a limited number of visitors.

He said it is not known at this time when the governor can be transferred to Alabama.

Stanton added there are no additional signs of change in Wallace's paralyzed legs.

A PAULIST DOESN'T WAIT TO BE ORDAINED TO GET INVOLVED.

If you think that ordination is something like graduation and the time in between is similar to marking time—then you couldn't be more mistaken.

The Paulists were founded with the belief that each man is a member of the community and he contributes his own thing. Each is an individual with his own talents and he is given the freedom to use them in his own way. But not later. Now.

For instance, during the novitiate, novices work in such diverse areas as hospitals, vocational rehabilitation centers and Universities. They serve as assistant chaplains, co-retreat masters, student teachers and psychiatric aides.

Paulist Seminars create recreational programs, direct "Days of Recollection" for CCD students, direct film series, experiment with the use of media in the liturgy as a preaching tool, originate and edit the Paulist Free Press, coordinate Lenten lectures and organize Home Masses, to mention just a few.

When you commit yourself to the Paulists, it isn't a someday thing. It's now. Today.

For more information about the Paulists write to: Rev. Donald C. Campbell, C.S.P., Vocation Director, Room 300, paulist fathers.

Milwaukee Brewers draft Danny Thomas

By Ernie Schweit
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

"Without question, he has draft potential."

That's how Southern Illinois baseball coach Richard "Itch" Jones described versatile sophomore infielder Danny Thomas at the beginning of the 1972 baseball season.

All that potential turned into a bonafide major league prospect Tuesday morning when Thomas of East Carondelet was plucked by the Milwaukee Brewers during the first round of the Major League baseball draft. The Brewers selected sixth among the 24 clubs.

Thomas was not available for comment at his campus address or permanent residence east of St. Louis, Mo.

During his two years in a Saluki uniform, Thomas batted .360 and collected 112 hits plus 55 stolen bases. Thirty-two of those bases were swiped last year to set an SIU season record.

Independent for now

MC marriage is over ...but what is next?

By Ken Stewart
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

A rocky marriage is over, but the five members of the defunct Midwestern Conference are unsure of their futures.

The league disbanded over one week ago, ending two years of athletic competition marked by:

- Southern Illinois domination; and
- No sixth member school which, pending NCAA approval, would have made the league champion eligible for an automatic NCAA post-season basketball tournament bid.

The Salukis won nine of 10 conference championships last year and added five this season. A football title wouldn't have been awarded until 1973.

Basketball was one sport in which the crown didn't fall Southern's way this year. But champion Northern Illinois—considered an independent because of the NCAA six-team regulation for qualifying leagues—was passed up by the NCAA and NIT despite its impressive 21-4 record.

The final knock came early this spring when Southern Illinois' Board of Trustees approved withdrawal with the alleged blessings of all Saluki coaches, the University Senate, various alumni groups and then-president Robert G. Layer.

With an unworkable four members, the conference Board of Governors unanimously voted to dissolve the league athletically effective this July. The academic portion remains intact pending further study.

The vote was unexpected and caught new SIU president David Derge by surprise. He abstained from voting, citing unfamiliarity with the situation.

All five schools—NIU, Illinois State, Ball State, Indiana State and SIU—will return to independent status. But beyond the immediate future, nothing has been mapped out at any of the other campuses.

"I don't know what we're going to do," SIU athletic director Donald Boydston responded about possible ventures into another conference and retention of MC schools on future SIU athletic schedules.

In sports such as gymnastics and track, conference schools rarely met

Five intramural tourneys for summer

Intramural activities for summer quarter will include 12-inch and 16-inch softball, a singles tennis tournament, a handball tournament and a racquetball tourney.

A managers meeting, when rosters will be due, for teams playing either brand of softball will be held at 6 p.m., Thursday, June 22, in Technology A-111. Faculty and staff are eligible.

Thomas also owns eight triples, 14 doubles and nine homeruns in his SIU career.

"I think it's a great honor for the man," said SIU's Coach Jones. "He worked for it and baseball-wise, I think he deserves it."

Thomas played every infield position this year except catcher and pitcher. But Jones said second base would most fit Thomas' ability which includes 3.8 second speed from home to first.

"He's got the physique, the physical tools, the size and the speed to handle the position," Jones commented. "It's also the spot where he could excel in major league ball the fastest."

Thomas has said he'd like a fling at third base. And while Jones thinks Thomas' forte is at second, Milwaukee Brewers' officials remain uncommitted.

"Our reports indicate his best position is at third," said Bob Quinn, the Brewers' director of minor league operations.

until after the regular season when a tournament decided the league champ. In football, however, SIU has scheduled the other four schools well into the next decade.

Boydston declined further comments about the dead conference, citing several recent Daily Egyptian articles that "hurt us with some of the other schools."

Comments attributed to officials outside the SIU athletic department had attacked the league's alleged athletic inferiority to Southern, lower admission standards and federal aid programs for athletes at the other universities. These stories reached the other universities, Boydston said, and caused ill feelings.

Southern has received its share of hard knocks in campus newspapers at other former Midwestern schools. The Ball State Daily News quoted one BSU sports official as saying the SIU athletic department is directionless and doesn't know where to point Saluki athletics.

The News also claimed SIU had considered dropping football at a time when other MC schools urged upgrading of Southern's 35-year old McAndrew Stadium, presently undergoing renovation.

The BSU newspaper said SIU expressed interest in the Mid-American Conference before helping establish the Midwestern. Later, the Mid-American undertook an expansion campaign and considered all Midwestern schools except SIU as a potential western division.

The News claimed other Midwestern schools vetoed this idea because they didn't want to "desert" SIU. The Mid-American eventually admitted two Michigan universities—Eastern and Central.

The Associated Press had mentioned Ball State and Northern as possible league-jumpers to the Mid-American. Athletic officials at both schools denied the reports.

Now, the MC is dead and the situation has changed but a Mid-American official said Monday the league has not received applications from Ball State or Northern.

The Mid-American's Board of Governors will meet next February to discuss expansion from the present eight members. "I assume they will consider applicants," said the league spokesman.

The conference constitution allows a maximum 10 members and Marshall is actively seeking readmission.

SIU never sought admittance to the MAC, as the BSU Daily News indicated. Supposedly, Ball State and Northern were interested.

Now the honeymoon—and marriage—is over for the MC and it wasn't even nice while it lasted.

"Some of our people like him at first, too. We know he's got good speed and a good bat so he could probably play anywhere."

Quinn said he isn't sure where Thomas will be assigned but indicated the Saluki infielder could end up on a high minor league team.

"The initial indication is that he's ticketed for a high level meaning double or triple A ball," Quinn said.

Thomas was named Most Valuable Player in the NCAA District Four Playoffs last year at Michigan State. His game-tying 377-foot homer in the ninth inning against Ohio University propelled into extra innings a game the Salukis won, 7-1.

Overall, Thomas collected nine hits in 22 at-bats during the District Four Playoffs. The Salukis won the District Four title last year. They finished second in the College World Series behind Southern California.

California players chosen by Sox, Cubs and Cardinals

NEW YORK (AP)—The Chicago Cubs, Chicago White Sox and St. Louis Cardinals each plucked a California high school star in the first round of the regular phase of the annual major league baseball free agent draft Tuesday.

Oregon collegian No. 1 pick

NEW YORK (AP)—Dave Roberts, a .410 hitter for the University of Oregon, became only the second collegian in baseball's 15-year draft history to be selected No. 1 in the regular phase when he was tapped Tuesday morning by the San Diego Padres.

Roberts, a right-handed hitting third baseman, hit 12 homers in 37 games and struck out only once in 144 at-bats.

The lone other collegian ever picked first by the major leagues was Rick

No. 1 choice of the Cardinals was right-handed pitcher Daniel Larson of Alhambra California High School.

Only Illinois players picked in the first round was first baseman Danny Thomas of Southern Illinois University, selected by the Milwaukee Brewers, and catcher Richard Bengston of Peoria Ill. Richwoods, taken by the New York Mets.

No. 1 pick of the entire draft was third baseman David Robert of the University of Oregon, selected by the San Diego Padres.

Monday, selected by the Oakland Athletics seven years ago. He's currently with the Chicago Cubs.

Eleven infielders were selected in Tuesday's first round along with eight pitchers, three catchers and two outfielders.

An oddity of sorts occurred in the 21st round when Mark Tanner, a pitcher-first baseman for Penn State, was selected by the Chicago Cubs. His dad, Chuck Tanner, manages the White Sox.
